

2017 CLYDE W. MORRIS MEMORIAL SCHOLARSHIP RECIPIENT

COLE EVAN REEVES
Augusta County

This year's recipient of the Clyde W. Morris Memorial Scholarship has been interested in agricultural education for several years – learning about the science, business and technology of plant and animal production and about environmental and natural resource systems.

Cole Reeves was active in his school FFA and served as chapter president. He was involved in livestock judging activities while in high school, winning several honors including state and national recognition.

A member of the National Honor Society, Cole is a firm believer that “Knowledge is Powerful” and feels that furthering his education in the agricultural field will “benefit both himself and help others”.

Working part-time for both an agricultural based construction company and a farm specializing in poultry, beef and lamb production, Cole also raises, sells and shows his own cattle- owning a herd of approximately 30 head. Cole will be attending Casper College in Casper Wyoming this fall studying Animal Science and planning to compete on the school collegiate livestock judging team.
